4. LANGUAGE

Aside from other indigenous languages spoken in Central Asia, almost everyone speaks Russian. Many will also know a smattering at least of one or more European languages – such as German and English. Because Uzbeks are scattered over a wide area outside of the republics of Central Asia, as well as due to the obvious influence of Islam, you will find quite a few speakers of Tajik, Turkish, and perhaps Arabic.

6. TRAVEL

PUBLIC TRANSPORT — Buses or trolley buses can often be too packed for comfort, but Tashkent's metro is quite good. There are numerous minibuses called marshrutka, which stop at pre-determined pickup points. You pay the driver or his assistant as you get out. Buses are reliable and leave from specially designated areas. Intercity buses usually wait to collect the most possible number of passengers. Travel by rail is slow and subject to long delays mid-journey. Note that all public announcements, particularly for trains and planes, are made both in Uzbek and Russian (and Tajik in Samarqand and Bukhara). Bicycles and motorbikes are not difficult to find but are not used much in city areas.

—Taxi

Some taxis are marked while others are not. You can also wave down and negotiate a fare with any private car willing to go your way, although this is not always as safe. To avoid unpleasant surprises, agree to fares in advance. It is useful to be able to tell the driver your destination in Uzbek or Russian (or have it written down on a piece of paper). Be warned, however, that some drivers will have as little idea as you as to the precise whereabouts of your destination. A reliable option is to call up one of the growing number of radio taxi companies.

7. ACCOMMODATION

Aside from the main hotels, which are mostly in Tashkent, Samarqand, Bukhara, and Khiva and provide service to European/US standards, you will find that room service is not always available, and breakfast or other meals will have to be negotiated and paid for separately. An excellent option in more rural areas is to have your accommodation arranged at a private house, where traditional hospitality will guarantee that you are well looked after and, as always in Uzbekistan, well fed. Note that mehmonxona means 'guesthouse' and 'hostel' as well as 'hotel'.

I am looking for a hotel.

8. FOOD & DRINK

Food plays an important part of Uzbek life, and important events in all aspects of life and the seasons are marked with foods of different kinds. Food is a very important aspect of Uzbek hospitality; it is both the host's duty to make sure his guests are eating and the guest's duty to partake of what is offered. Pilau is king in Uzbek cuisine, and new guests are traditionally fed this rice dish above all others.

(ertalabki) choy
obed or tushlik
kechki ovqat
shirinlik or desert

MEALS — Uzbeks do not use separate names for meals as in English. The terms given above are rather literal terms. Breakfast is referred to as 'tea', as in choyga kelinglar — though this could refer to any other tea time. Lunch and dinner are usually just called ovqat 'food'. The verb ovqatlanish refers to eating lunch, dinner, or any other large meal.

CULTURAL NOTE — While in the West it is perfectly OK to state dietary preferences, in Uzbek society this is interpreted as an insult to the host: you are in effect telling them that the food isn't good enough for you. In traditional Uzbek society (and many other Asian societies) people will be baffled that someone would voluntarily choose not to eat meat.

More on food & drink . . .

Food in Uzbekistan is a great discovery for the visitor. Each part of Uzbekistan has its unique cuisine with its own special flavor. There is a wide variety of rice and noodle-based dishes, and several varieties of soups. Some dishes are obviously Iranian in origin, some Chinese. Some common specialties include:

palov; osh — pilau made from lamb or beef cooked with carrots, onions, and spices, especially garlic and cumin

chuchvara — wonton dumplings served with either tomato or yogurt do'lma — grape leaves, cabbage, or peppers stuffed with ground lamb and spices

somsa — small oven-baked meat pies filled with meat, onions and fat

mantı — steamed meat pies

dimlama — meat, potatoes and vegetables steamed in their own juices

lag'mon — long noodles served in soup

Accompanying the above will be seasonal greens and other finger food. Finish off your meal with fruit — Uzbekistan is famous for its melons and grapes, all washed down with the ubiquitous tea or mineral water bottled from one of the country's many natural sources.

ALCOHOL — Alcohol is drunk commonly, but one may encounter disapproval in some cases for religious reasons, which should be respected. Once started, though, you will be asked to drink more and more!

FEASTING — Uzbeks have developed a finely tuned tradition of feasting through the ziyofat, or banquet. Course after course is brought to a low table around which the diners sit. The only essential phrases to know here: Xush kelibsizlar! 'Welcome!'

ETIQUETTE — Each meal (or any other gathering) ends with a small prayer or fotiha during which everyone holds out their hands, then strokes their face before getting up to leave.

Where . . . ?

There are three basic ways of asking 'where?' in Uzbek. There is some overlap in usage, but the basic differences are as follows:

—Qayerda? is used when asking the location of something, as on a map. "Nyu York qayerda?" "Amerikada." ("Where is New York?" "In America.")

—Qayoqda? (or qaysi tomonda/tarafda?) is used when asking which direction you should head to find something, as when searching for a store or address when you're in the vicinity. "Pochta qayoqda?" "Where/which way is the post office?"

—Qani? is used to ask the whereabouts of a person or thing that should be present or at hand, as in asking where your keys are: "Kalitarim qani?"

ARTS AND CRAFTS — Uzbekistan boasts numerous artists of varying quality and there are a number of antique shops notably in Tashkent's Eski Shahar (Old City). Remember that there are restrictions on what you can take out of the country. Buying art is little problem as every Uzbek seems to have a friend who is an artist or craftsman. So you can spend many a pleasant afternoon as you are taken round various houses to examine mini collections. Quality art is also sold in the street and parks, e.g. metal work, jewelry and wood carvings. The best places still to buy gifts and souvenirs are the 'salons,' the official handicraft galleries.

ANTIQUITIES — Remember that it is illegal to take out of the country any Uzbek antiques unless accompanied by the relevant paperwork.

—Smoking

Cigarettes are usually purchased from kiosks. American brands are more pricy but still a bargain by western standards. The best value is to buy by the carton where prices are normally fixed. Uzbeks will smoke anywhere – it is rare indeed to find a smoke-free area and it is advisable to avoid constricted enclosed places if smoking creates problems for your health or if you simply find it offensive.

Shops and markets . . .

WHEN TO SHOP — Shops open around 9am and close around 7pm. New private shops tend not to break for lunch, while older state shops do. Markets are open every day.

HOW TO PAY — Everything is best paid for in cash. Credit cards are increasingly acceptable in the cities but travelers' checks are still difficult to cash. Many shops now have price tags attached to items but in most places you will have to ask.

FOOD AND WINE — As well as the main streets of stores in the town centers, every street seems to have its own small produce kiosk or store. There is also a growing number of specialty shops, including supermarkets where you can buy western products.

MARKETS — For fresh produce go to a bazaar or market, where prices and availability of goods are seasonal. As a foreigner, you may occasionally find yourself paying a little more here — but not much! The best time is early morning when everything is at its freshest, particularly for meat. In the evenings you'll get a better price (Uzbeks call this kechki bozor), but less choice. Many local delicacies can be found here, including all kinds of fruit, smoked and dried meats, and a veritable plethora of spices, nuts and fruit. In Tashkent, visit the colorful flower markets or the talkuchka — markets where you can buy all the usual consumer products at a bargain, from cigarettes to CD-players, from clothing to pirate videos.

Religious heritage . . .

The overwhelming majority of the population of Uzbekistan is Sunni Muslim. Additionally, there are also members of the Russian Orthodox Church and ever-dwindling numbers of Jews. Aside from mosques, you will also discover the odd synagogue or church. Mosques and madrasas (religious schools) have always played an important part in the development of the Uzbek people and state, and, although the Soviet period and now the demands of modern times have greatly undermined its power and influence, Islam still makes its presence felt through the often stunning religious buildings still standing throughout the country. Of particular significance are the monuments in Samarqand, Bukhara, and Khiva, but there are historic buildings wherever you look in Uzbekistan.

HOLIDAYS & FESTIVALS — There are a wide variety of traditional festivals celebrated in every village and area. Important dates in the national calendar are Ramazon (Ramadan, the month of fasting), Ro'za hayiti (Id al-Fitr, when the end of Ramadan and fasting is celebrated), Qurbon hayiti (Hajj holiday), and Navruz Bayrami — the Persian New Year or Spring Festival (March 21st). Because of the influence of European and Russian (Soviet) tradition, New Year (December 31st/January 1st) celebrations have also become one of the major festivities.

12. FINANCE

CURRENCIES — The official currency in Uzbekistan is the som, divided into 100 tiyin. Unofficially in use, but still accepted everywhere outside of government establishments and retail outlets, are U.S. dollars. These may be refused however if notes are creased, torn, old, or simply a low denomination. Be prepared to accept change in som.

CHANGING MONEY — Aside from the banks, money can also be changed in any bureau de change, where you will find reliable, up-to-date exchange rates prominently displayed on a board. The cashiers will often know a European language or two, and almost all will show the workings of the exchange on a calculator for you and give you a receipt. Many shops and kiosks will also be happy to change money for you.

Courtesy . . .

Uzbeks pride themselves on being a courteous people and this is reflected in the expressions they use towards guests and superiors. Some related expressions you'll commonly hear are:

Khush kelibsiz!

Welcome (to our home)
This is said after you have entered a house, sat down, exchanged greetings, drunk tea, etc.

Marhamat!
Eshigimiz doimo ochiq!
Tez-tez kelib turinglar!

Welcome! or Please . . . !
Our door is always open for you!
Come again and again!

13. COMMUNICATIONS

TELECOMMUNICATIONS — All local calls are free, although you need to use tokens (jeto'n) in public phones. International calls are dialed direct, or else booked through the international operator — this may incur a wait of several hours. Phones give one long ring to indicate a local call, two shorter rings for an international call. Satellite telephone links are costly but are a reliable and secure method of communication. Pagers and mobile phones are widely used (including GSM). Mobile phones may be rented for a period of time.

Yes & no . . .

YES – The word for yes, ha, is used more like ‘uh-huh’: perhaps a more accurate way of saying yes is to simply repeat the main verb in the question, e.g. “Shu yerda telefon bormi?” “Is there a telephone here?” “Bor.” “There is.” – or, more simply, “Bormi?” “Is there any?” “Bor.” “There is.”

NO – Saying yo‘q directly can be a little rude. As above with ‘yes’, one usually repeats the key element of the question, e.g. “Yo‘q, bormayman.” “No, I’m not going.”

19. THE WEATHER

Most of Uzbekistan comprises mid-latitude desert, though in the Ferghana Valley and other eastern regions you'll find cooler and more forested foothills. Summers can be very hot with temperatures over 40°C, but winters are mostly mild. Uzbekistan has all four seasons, with quite mild and pleasant weather in the spring and fall, much like any other temperate country.

20. CAMPING

This is not a popular pastime among Uzbeks. (Daily life provides enough hardships.) It is not uncommon for Uzbeks to take family outings, though, such as to the mountains. Chimyon is a popular spot outside of Tashkent.

21. EMERGENCY

COMPLAINING — If you really feel you have been cheated or misled, raise the matter first with your host or the proprietor of the establishment in question preferably with a smile. Uzbeks are proud but courteous, with a deeply felt tradition of hospitality, and consider it their duty to help any guest. Angry glares and shouting will get you nowhere.

CRIME — Uzbeks are law-abiding people, but petty theft does occur. Without undue paranoia, take usual precautions: watch your wallet or purse, securely lock your equipment and baggage before handing it over to railway or airline porters, and don't leave valuables on display in your hotel room. On buses, look out for pickpockets — keep valuables in front pockets and your bag close to your side. If you are robbed, contact the police. Of course in the more remote areas, sensible precautions should be taken, and always ensure that you go with a guide. In general, follow the same rules as you would in your own country and you will run little risk of encountering crime.

LOST ITEMS — If you lose something, save time and energy by appealing only to senior members of staff or officials. If you have lost items in the street or left anything in public transport, the police may be able to help.

DISABLED FACILITIES — The terrain and conditions throughout most of Uzbekistan do not make it easy for any visitor to get around in a wheelchair even at the best of times. Access to most buildings in the cities is difficult, particularly since the majority of lifts function irregularly. Facilities are rarely available in hotels, airports or other public areas.

TOILETS — You will find public utilities located in any important or official building. You may use those in hotels or restaurants. You may sometimes encounter failed plumbing and absence of toilet paper. Similar to Turkey and countries in the Middle East, people in Uzbekistan tend to use any available paper as toilet paper, and occasionally a jug of water (rural areas).

22. HEALTHCARE

INSURANCE — Make sure any insurance policy you take out covers Uzbekistan, although this will only help in flying you out in case of a serious accident or illness. No vaccinations are required for Uzbekistan, although your doctor may suggest you take the boosters usually recommended when making any trip outside of North America and Western Europe.

PHARMACIES — These are easy to find but can be understocked at times. If planning to travel off the beaten track, it is probably best to bring a sufficient supply of any specific medication you require. But most of the familiar range of medicines can be found in the capital, Tashkent. Don't forget to check the "best before" date.

25. THE CAR

DRIVING — Unless you already know the country well, it is inadvisable to bring your own vehicle to Uzbekistan. If you do, you will need an international driver's license, car registration papers and insurance. Driving conditions vary. Normally roads are well signposted. But side roads might be without warning of roadworks and sometimes manholes are not closed properly. Street lighting is sporadic, and traffic lights, if they exist, rarely work — but when they do Uzbeks seem to take great pleasure in ignoring them especially when no police or other vehicle are in sight, as in late at night. So you better look out for those who like crossing on red lights and make sure the crossroad is clear. Certain areas have parking restrictions, although it is not always obvious where they are or what the restrictions are. Rather than book you, the police will simply remove the license plates of an illegally parked car. The unfortunate driver then has to discover which police unit or station is holding them, and negotiate a suitable fee for their return. But in general you may park your car where you wish, provided that you do not block traffic.

26. SPORTS

Displays of physical strength are greatly prized in Uzbek society. Wrestling and horse-racing are particularly favorite traditional sports. If you're lucky, you may even witness buftakari (Afghan "kuzbashi"), a game played on horseback in rural areas. More recent sports adopted include judo and other martial arts, basketball and, of course, soccer.
